The Study Programme "ACCESS-Europe" *

"ACCESS-Europe" is a certificate course additional to, but integrated into, the students own course. It consists of bi- and multilateral activities that have been tried and tested, other training and educative opportunities already available in the students course and further programmes which are specifically designed for the certificate. With the certificate "ACCESS-Europe" an additional qualification for European (international/intercultural) youth-, community- and social work is attested.

"ACCESS-Europe" is designed as a modular training scheme. Students who have successfully completed all modules receive this certificate.

The Modules of "ACCESS-Europe"

ACCESS-EUROPE

Koblenz,

President

European Centre for Community Education - ECCE

The "European Centre for Community Education - ECCE" was founded on December, 15, 1985, in Oberwesel (Federal Republic of Germany).

The ECCE has the legal form of a registered association with charitable status.

Aims:

- The fundamental task of the "European Centre for Community Education - ECCE" is to further the concept of Europe as a social community through the promotion of activities which will facilitate the comparison of existing models, and the possible development of new models of community education.
- In this context the term community education is used to include the fields of social work, community work, youth work, work with disadvantaged people and other related educational activities. The Centre therefore is intended to promote greater knowledge and better understanding of different cultures amongst young people with particular reference to Europe, through providing educational experiences and training activities on a multi-lateral basis.

Objectives:

- To initiate and promote multi-lateral exchanges.
- To provide inter-cultural learning opportunities for workers and for those engaged in their education and training in the field of community education.
- To develop networks for the exchange of information and research about theory and practice in the field of community education.
